Traveler, you've been walking a while. I know you're tired. Why don't you join us? I know what you're thinking: strangers in a carpeted van with tie-dye curtains and Moroccan pillows, the faint smell of roses and amber incense wafting out.

Is it a vision? No, my friend, this is an opportunity. We are all foreigners, we are all travelers, coming together over time on the road, destination unknown. You see, life just got bland. You know that feeling when your whole body goes numb after sitting in one place for too long and you have to poke your arms and legs to see if you feel anything? Well here, that doesn't happen. We feel it all. It's almost psychedelic, sensations we've been privy to for far too long suddenly like fire in our veins. Here, my friend, we pick berries off the side of the road, We shower in ice-cold lakes, rub our thumbs over wild lavender, and whisper our secrets to the trees. Where we are going is to be discovered, but we can promise you experiences like none other. this calling is ours and ours alone. The door is open, Are you coming?

An astonishing aroma transports you to the forbidden forest, where imagination and reality lose their boundaries amidst the intoxicating scents of magic berries. This is a surreal realm of exploration, one that will leave an indelible impression and provide you with the confidence needed to celebrate your uniqueness and powerful individuality.

Welcome, this place is safe for us misfits. A temple for everyone who is simultaneously nothing and everything. Let there be a blurring of the lines and spaces between us. I am your guide. You will learn that I can be many things.

I shift like a kaleidoscope, let me be and my colors and shapes will fall into place.

Come in, don't be shy. Sit down, stay a while, listen to my stories.

Did you know that your spine was made to move through water, yet it holds you upright? The point is that we all started as something else and here we are, little miracles just walking around. So please, a little less judgment towards yourself and others, time is of the essence.

You spend so much of your time trying to fit in and you forget that the only things you truly own are yourselves.

Love yourselves as you are right now, won't you?

Fog hangs heavy upon the streets. The echoing click-clack of shoes against the cobblestone softens into the night. A heavy wooden door creaks open and a few stairs lead you down into a smokey club with a stage. You sit at a table, order a drink. In the spotlight, a woman dressed in wine red sings slowly, a sensual rasp that reminds you of a night you spent in Marseille. The air was moist with sea salt, the heady summertime heat lingered on your skin. Movement from a nearby table draws you back into the present moment. You meet the gaze. You notice the curve of a jawline that meets a neck. Posture open, alert. Eyes mysterious yet bright and unafraid. You're instantly enchanted. A hint of bourbon and leather mingles with the smokey atmosphere of the club. The woman on stage finishes her set and sweeps off stage, leaving a trail of glitter in her wake. Her magic is over but yours has just begun.

The wide green spreads out before you. The faint ribbon of road that lays behind is the only reminder of the way you came. You see a yellow house perched by itself in the field. An old woman is sitting in a rocking chair out front. As you reach the porch, she smiles and beckons you inside. You enter the kitchen to see her standing over a pitcher of iced tea. She reaches for a jar entitled Mystic Sugar, then scoops and stirs 3 generous tablespoons into the pitcher. She pours two cups and holds one out for you to take. "Take a sip now..." You close your eyes and the warm flavor of sundried vanilla fills your mouth. Time stands still and you feel the air rushing by while swinging gently on your childhood swing, feet kicking underneath you. When you open your eyes again you're back on the road, the old woman and her house nowhere to be seen. You stop for a second, trying to decide if what you just experienced was real or some hallucination. You pick back up your knapsack and carry on down the road, one foot in front of the other, one foot in front of the other...

Everybody round 'ere is always asking about Punk Motel.

“Don't ask me, I don't know nothing”, I always say. I always say it and they always go a-lookin' for it anyways. An old man like me should just be left in peace.

Let me get this straight, I know where it is, I just don't wanna tell nobody.

Everybody think they Punk these days, but boy-oh-boy if you saw Punk when Punk was Punk, you might not wanna be Punk. We were the outcasts of the world, we did not fit in nor did we want to. True rebels, tumbleweeds blowin' across the desert, lone soldiers. The only thing that did us any good was being different, so different we all found each other.

Punk Motel is a symphony, a cacophony of sights, sounds and smells that brings back that feelin'. I don't wanna spoil it, so even if you come round askin' 'bout Punk Motel I will tell you “Don't ask me, I don't know nothing”.

That's Punk.

DESCRIPTION

Bright, delicate but at the same time of character, enveloping. The light of bergamot and white rose petals are “dirty” with salicylates that add a slightly salty appearance without marine scents, but like the wind that comes from the sea and crosses the desert. The bottom is extremely enveloping, musks and vanilla round off the fragrance, linked together by the character of ambrette to create an accord that does not go unnoticed.

You don't really want me to leave.
I know this in my heart as you watch me in the dark.

One thing we've got going is the magnetism with which we find each other again and again.
Wave me away if you like, smoke the last pack with a steely gaze, but you will always look for me again in the morning.

Your heart is molasses dark, the kind of dark that is almost sweet.
When you wrap yourself around me, constellations of stars collide in countless sacred moments and I slide ever closer to the black hole of complete obsession.

We are a narcotic symphony of disastrous, never-ending love.

That's what you are for me.

I am wasted, high on everything you do.

I will follow you into the pitch blackness, I will ricochet off your heart and fly through the skies.

Life with you is a full moon at midnight.

DESCRIPTION

A fragrance with an extremely original structure that opens with spices, citrus fruits and an original “marijuana” accord that strikes immediately.

Not least the heart where the head of the fragrance rests.

A resinous heart where the elemi, the incense, the labdanum create a narcotic symphony.

The structure is closed by a background rich in woods where cedar dominates. The powerful notes of oud and oak musk give character.

We meet in the space between sleeping and waking.

You, wrapped up in astrology and space. Me, earth bound and wanting.

In my insomnia, I walk to the edge of the earth. In my dreams I wait until you fall from the sky like a shooting star.

Your form changes, but it always happens the same way. Me, waiting.

You, shooting across the sky and then down until you appear in front of me, a solar system of everything I love.

If I could, I'd take a spaceship to find you amongst your playground of planets. If I take the time and squint hard enough at the right angle I can make out the stratosphere of you.

A thousand years from now, they'll find me under the full moon counting your freckles and waiting for your star to fall.

I will love you like the universe loves all of us, in secret, at night and for eternity.

A thousand volts from top to bottom or a slow broil. Paralysis or freedom. Whatever it is for you will not be the same for me and just as well because wouldn't the same of everything make this world a horrible place to live?

A light flight or a long dark swim that ends in tragedy, what do I know what it means to live in your shoes? I just know what my chaotic reality feels like, the nerves that make me feel so much can also numb themselves but that's where art comes into play.

That's where life should begin. That's when you set yourself on fire and you put down the violin and pick up the electric guitar.

Shout yourself into existence!
We are not here simply to disappear.
Say it again and again and again, Amen.

DESCRIPTION

Powerful, bold fragrance, a declaredly aggressive combination of ingredients. The spicy notes of cloves and nutmeg are only slightly softened by neroli, which has no time to fully express itself because it is dragged into the heart, where saffron and whiskey dominate the floral accord of ylang and rose. The declaration of war comes from the bottom of the fragrance. Oud, Guaiac, Cedar and a powerful leather accord leave their mark on the wearer's skin.

They say the rose had magical powers. Others said it was how I kept my force. Some said it was a curse and some didn't believe in its existence at all.

I kept the rose in the deepest part of the fortress.

Every evening I awaited the cloud of dust on the horizon that darkened the return of my warriors.

The people called me "the living statue", for I did not move until the last of my soldiers entered and the gate closed heavily behind them. Nobly, I ruled the land.

I had my thorns, just like my rose, but my beauty was overpowering.

Enemies fell at my feet. When darkness descended I would go into the depths of the fortress and tend to my rose. What else transpired there only I know, but every morning at dawn's first light the land was enveloped in a mystic fragrance and my people woke up feeling brave and fiery.

A brazen statement. Rose in the opening and nothing more. But a rose with a dark soul that is not mushy. A beating heart of flowers that are never banal to smell, like geranium and jasmine enriched by the noble saffron. This combination of the head and the heart creates a floral fragrance that captures attention, an intriguing accord that rests on a firm, clean base, in which the notes of the dark patchouli dance together with the mystic Styrax and the "life wood", the guaiac. Musks bind and envelop the entire fragrance.

JEWELRY

MANUAL SKILLS ABOVE TECHNOLOGY,
THIS IS WHAT CORETERNO JEWELRY IS ALL ABOUT, THROUGH THE RECOVERY OF ANCIENT TRADITIONS THAT HAVE THEIR ROOTS IN ANCIENT ROME,
HAND-BEATEN METAL, ENGRAVING, LIVE FIRE FORGING.

JEWELS WHICH MAKE THE HAND OF THE ARTIST WHO CREATED THEM PERCEIVABLE, IMPERFECT AND UNIQUE AS THE ESSENCE OF MAN HIMSELF. ENGRAVED AND BAS-RELIEF WORDS THAT EXPRESS THE INTELLECT, THE POETRY OF THE HUMAN BEING AND HIS ABILITY TO CREATE HIS OWN DESTINY.

EVERY DETAIL COUNTS

Hand crafted in Rome by the hands of the finest Italian goldsmith masters, using the antique technique of the lost wax.

Made of Sterling Silver 925.

Inspired by the enormous power that words have to create and build our reality.
